AUTHORITIES SEARCH IN VAIN FOR MINER LAST SEEN SUNDAY

Frank McGuire, well-known miner, disappeared Sunday morning and the authorities fear for his safety. He was despondent, according to friends who last saw him. Sunday morning he left the boarding house of Mrs. Woods, telling her he was going down town. That was the last seen of him. He had several hundred dollars in his possession, it is believed. Wires to various cities have failed to locate him and unless he is found today it is probable that a searching posse will be formed tomorrow morning.

WILLIAM BERNE BEATS MASKED MARVEL IN AN EXCITING MATCH

William Berne, the husky Russian, proved himself not only a man of great strength, but of great cleverness, yesterday afternoon when he bested Ajax's "Masked Marvel" in their finish wrestling match at the Airdome. The first fall was won by Berne after 45 minutes and 15 seconds of struggle, starting at 2:30. The Russian was in some difficulty with his wind, the "Marvel" having an advantage there because he had trained in this high altitude, while Berne came direct from the coast just before the match.

Ajax's man was clever enough, but no match in strength for Berne. Again and again he got Berne in a wicked scissor hold, but the Russian always broke it. After the 45 minutes of struggle in the first fall, Berne suddenly grasped his man with his hands clasped behind the back of his neck and threw him over his head and landed on him, quick as a cat, pinning his shoulders to the mat. The "Marvel" several times got the Russian with a toe hold, but always lost it.

In the second fall Berne, vividly demonstrating his superior strength, got the toe hold, and after a minute or two of pressure the "Marvel" slapped the mat with his hand and Berne was declared winner.

The match, from first to last, was full of thrills and was well worth the price of admission, making up for the boxing flivver. In the second fall Berne pleased the big crowd by holding his man perpendicularly, head down, grasping him by his shins, and slapped the "Marvel's" gruesomely masked head a number of times on the floor. The "Marvel" earned some hoots by using his fists once or twice, seemingly very desirous of getting home a full swing upper cut.

All ten rounds of the Carter-Pappas fight have been done to the tune of a nice dreamy waltz. Both of the big men were slow on their feet, with their hands and their heads. When Referee Pierce raised Carter's arm at the end of the last round there was the usual hoot from two or three spectators and Pappas loudly declared it wasn't fair. The decision was the only one possible, however. Carter won, but deserves no medal for it.

In the first two rounds there was little pretense at fighting. Round by round the rest of the alleged battle went like this:

Third—Pappas landed a left to the ribs. Both missed swings. Pappas tried an ambitious left to Carter's disgraceful embonpoint and they went into an embrace by mutual consent. Carter blocked all of Pappas' clumsy efforts except a light left to the neck.

Fourth—Carter—clinch—clinch. Carter blocked right swing. Carter landed right to head. Referee broke them. Then did it again. Carter landed left to head and one to Pappas' mouth. They were clinched at the gong.

Seventh—Carter's right got to Pappas' head and the black man, encouraged, swung his right and left to the same destination successfully. They clinched. Carter got a stiff right chop to Pappas' jaw. Carter missed some determined swings, then found the range and landed his right twice to the jaw. He roughed the tired Greek in a clinch. A left to his jaw sent Pappas down again. He jumped up and was trying when the gong sounded.

Eighth—Pappas came out of his corner instructed to slam the negro where he was fastest. He tried to follow instruction, but with little success and no damage. They roughed it languidly in a clinch. Pappas got a right to Carter's jaw and they hugged each other until Carter brought his left up to Pappas' jaw. The referee broke them. Pappas was still more weary.

SWEDES AND GERMANS MIX IT IN GOLDFIELD

By way of celebrating Christmas eve several scores of Swedes and Germans mixed it in a battle royal Christmas eve in Goldfield, following an invasion of a German saloon by the Swedes. Today fourteen of the belligerents are in jail and five of them are in the county hospital. How or why the battle started isn't clear, though an argument on the war preceded the hostilities.

This morning a Goldfield officer came to Tonopah and arrested a German resident of Goldfield at the Mizpah hotel. The German is charged with making disloyal remarks. The officer asked him: "Were you sober when you made that remark yesterday?" and when the German readily declared he was sober the officer put him under arrest and took him back to Goldfield in his auto.

C. D. ASHER TAKES H. LEGLER'S PLACE

C. D. Asher, formerly of Galveston, Tex., today took up his duties as successor to Hugo Legler, head of the local weather bureau, who will leave tomorrow for Independence to take charge of the station there. Legler asked that he be permitted to change offices with Asher because of his health, the high altitude here having proven bad for his health. Asher came from Galveston to take charge of the Independence office and had hardly taken charge when he agreed to change with Legler.

Legler, who has been here for about three years, will be greatly missed in Tonopah. Legler's dog, "Bollinas," will go with him and also his cat. Asher is no stranger to Tonopah people, having substituted at this station in 1911 when J. C. Piercy, Sr., was sick. Mrs. Asher, daughter of Piercy, is in the East and will come to Tonopah next March.

H. C. BROUGHER WIRES WISHES TO TONOPAH

The following telegram of holiday greetings was received from H. C. Brougher, banker and mining man: Oakland, Cal., Dec. 25, 1917. W. W. Booth, Care Tonopah Daily Bonanza, Tonopah, Nev.

Best wishes to you and the people of Tonopah for a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year. It looks as if the year 1918 were going to be a very bright one for Tonopah. I expect to see big things happen in the western and southern sections of Tonopah.

H. C. BROUGHER gave a Christmas tree entertainment to all the children in her neighborhood Monday night. Presents were presented to everyone and games were indulged in. Many of these children were from homes where Christmas festivities were not possible, owing to the fact that some were without mothers and others were fatherless.

AMUSEMENTS

"Dead Shot Baker," the Vitaphone Blue Ribbon feature, which will be the attraction at the Butler this evening, is an adaptation of the famous Wolfville tale by that name. The picture loses none of its western realism by screening and is given by Vitaphone screen favorites who have made their reputation in pictures of rugged, wild western life. An eastern girl, bride of the sheriff of Wolfville, forms an attachment for the new postmaster, a polished, dapper easterner, and in his distress at not being able to hold the affection of his wife the sheriff deliberately seeks death that she may be free to wed the postmaster. He passes the lie to a gambler and refuses to draw his gun, but friends detecting his purpose, prevent a killing. Then, single-handed, he engages an outlaw leader and falls over a cliff to seeming certain death, as the posse he is leading is routed. Filled with remorse and her latest love for the brave officer fully awakened when the remnants of the posse return with the word of his death and that he died to free her, the girl upbraids the men for fleeing and leads them back into the fight. The outlaws this time are defeated and Dead Shot Baker, her sheriff husband, is found wounded in a cabin at the foot of the cliff holding off an attacking party. She nurses him back to life and happiness. In addition to the above feature, the latest release of the Hearst-Pathé News will be shown.

Tomorrow, "The Haunted House," a regular old-fashioned, but up-to-date ghost story, featuring Winifred Allen. A real honest-to-goodness haunted house is used for the staging of this picture.

SECURING TRIAL JURY.

The work of securing a jury to try Frank Cline and Thomas Edwards, charged with stealing machine parts from the Nevada Ophir Mining company at Ophir two months ago, was started today in the district court. Late this afternoon the full jury had not yet been secured. Thomas Fagan is representing the accused men and District Attorney Atkinson is handling the prosecution.
